

NC-011 Group 1

Emblem Meaning

The Group 1 emblem features an ultramarine-blue shield bordered in Air Force gold. At its center is a red-and-white compass rose symbolizing the unit's dedication to the Search and Rescue mission. Beneath it, two white hands reaching toward one another represent the principle of service before self.

The emblem uses official CAP and Air Force colors: red for passion in mission performance, blue for devotion to duty, and white for purity of intent. The group name appears in the lower scroll in ultramarine blue, in accordance with heraldry standards for group-level emblems, and the motto "Service Before Self" is referenced in symbolism rather than displayed.
