

NC-023 Cape Fear Composite Squadron

Emblem Meaning

The Cape Fear Composite Squadron emblem reflects both aviation excellence and the coastal heritage of the Wilmington area. The emblem is divided into two contrasting sections. The blue side features an osprey in flight, symbolizing vigilance, readiness, and the squadron's strong connection to the region's maritime environment.

The black section displays a stylized aircraft, representing the squadron's commitment to search and rescue missions, aviation operations, and aerospace education. Together, the blue and black halves mirror an aircraft attitude indicator, highlighting a focus on aviation technology and flight proficiency.

A silver border surrounds the emblem, signifying unity and strong bonds among squadron members. The top banner, "SEAHAWKS," reflects the squadron's mascot, while the bottom banner identifies the unit as the Cape Fear Composite Squadron. Overall, the emblem represents dedication to mission, aviation heritage, and service to the community.
